

GIVE YOUR CAREER
THE GREEN LIGHT AS A
TRAFFIC SIGNAL
TECHNICIAN

MISSOURI VALLEY

Line Constructors Apprenticeship & Training Program

THE JOB AS A TRAFFIC SIGNAL TECHNICIAN

is vitally important because the safety of drivers and pedestrians is dependent on the work they do.

THAT WORK includes everything from erecting structures to developing special circuits and/or sequencers to enhance signal operations, installing control devices to working with computerized communication cables. As a result, you will be well-compensated for your training and the ongoing work you will do as a traffic signal technician.

CAREER AT A GLANCE

What skills and knowledge are needed?

Your success as a traffic signal technician will be dependent on your knowledge of electricity, physical strength and stamina, ability to work in nearly all weather conditions, and technical capacity to understand drawings and diagrams. The Missouri Valley Line Constructors Apprentice & Training Program is the best and most respected way to learn these skills.

What type of certification will you earn?

This is a Department of Labor-(DOL) approved apprenticeship. Upon graduation you will receive your DOL certification and journeyman traffic signal technician's ticket.

What are your career prospects as a traffic signal technician?

With proper training and ongoing education, traffic signal technicians can advance to supervisory positions. Many technicians move on to project management roles with contractors or technical sales and support for traffic signal product manufacturers or suppliers.

Where will you find work?

Traffic signal technicians work in all sizes of cities.

How much will you make?

Traffic signal technicians have the potential to make a minimum of $70,000 per year based on experience and workload. That's in addition to the attractive benefit packages traffic signal technicians receive. You'll begin earning that wage when you start your apprenticeship training program.

What is the job outlook?

The world of the traffic signal technician is driven by the demands of traffic and technology, which continues to grow.

"I never thought about it, but someone has to be responsible for the safety of pedestrians and drivers by ensuring that traffic signals are in working order. I'm proud to be that someone."
